

Graduate Programme

Intake: September, 2016
Duration: 12 months
Hours: Full time
Location: 50 Featherstone Street, EC1Y 8RT, Central London
Deadline: Friday 12th February, 2016

YouGov are currently looking for bright and ambitious graduates to train as Graduate Researchers in September 2016. Our Graduate programme lasts 12 months and during this time you will rotate around our research and operations teams. This will provide you with a comprehensive grounding in research methodology and how these are applied in a commercial environment. Alongside a comprehensive induction programme, you will immediately take an active role in UK research, from the initial project briefing and proposal to the presentation of final results, including:

- Project Management – setting up and managing the logistics of research projects
- Contributing to the generation of outputs
- Analysing and interpreting findings
- Assisting in preparing client presentations

YouGov is a fast paced, friendly, entrepreneurial organisation. We don't just ask the questions – we are far more nosy than that! We want the deeper insights, we want to know what people are thinking and doing, all over the world, all of the time – how do they think? What is motivating them? What are the stimulants? Where is the energy?

This is the mission that drives our business - we want to know 'What the World Thinks'.

But this isn't enough – we want to do what we do accurately, whilst using the latest technological developments, and really working together as a team across all of our offices around the world.

So do you think you could fit into our community? Are you a naturally inquisitive individual that would thrive on helping our clients answer their questions? Could you deliver with minimal hand holding? Do you fit with our values? Do you want to be a part of a business where you are encouraged to take part, not only in your role, but as an active component of the corporate engine?

The key qualities we are looking for include:

- An inquisitive and analytical mind
- Drive, initiative and willingness to take ownership of projects
- Creative thinking
- A team player with proven ability to communicate and interact with a diverse range of people
- Excellent organisational and time management skills
- Keenness to work in a business environment
- An achieved 2:1 or above degree, in any discipline

YouGov welcome applications from graduates who are keen to start a stimulating, fast-paced and varied career in market research.

Please send your CV and a covering letter to graduateapplications@yougov.com to register your interest in YouGov's Graduate Scheme by Friday 12th February 2016. We are an equal opportunities employer. YouGov welcomes applications from suitably qualified candidates irrespective of sex, sexual orientation, marital status, age, race, colour, nationality, national or ethnic origin, disability, religion, belief or gender re-assignment.
