MPs are set to vote on a new law allowing assisted dying under the following circumstances:

- The patient must have the mental capacity to make the choice and be deemed to have expressed a clear, settled and informed wish, free from coercion or pressure
- The patient must be expected to die within six months
- The patient must make two separate declarations, witnessed and signed, about their wish to die
- Two independent doctors must be satisfied the patient is eligible - and there must be at least seven days between the doctors' assessments
- Applications for assisted dying must be reviewed by a panel consisting of a senior legal figure, a consultant psychiatrist, and a social worker. There must be a further 14 days after the panel has given its approval
- The fatal substance must be self-administered by the patient themselves (rather than by a doctor)
