If Britain votes to REMAIN in the European Union, what difference, if any, do you think it will make to whether other EU countries listen to Britain's concerns?

If Britain votes to Remain other EU countries will worry less about Britain's concerns, as we will have voted to stay

If Britain votes to Remain other EU countries will listen more to British's concerns, as they will see how close we came to leaving

The referendum will probably make little difference to how much other EU countries listen to Britain's concerns
