Some people predict that there will be no outright winner of next week's general election, and that the Liberal Democrats will have enough seats to hold the balance power. This could mean that Nick Clegg's party will decide whether Britain has a Labour or Conservative prime minister. Are you reassured or worried by the prospect of the Liberal Democrats having this power?

Some people support a change in the British voting system to proportional representation, where the number of MPs a party wins more closely reflects the share of the vote they receive. Other people support retaining our present voting system, First Past the Post, which is more likely to give one party an overall majority in the House of Commons and avoid a hung Parliament. Which voting system would you prefer?
