According to official statistics, the population of the UK will rise from 61 million today to around 70 million in 2028.

How would you feel about a population of this size?

According to official figures, around 70 per cent of that estimated increase - about 7 million people - is likely to be as a result of immigration. Some argue that this will put great strain on resources in the UK, while others argue that the economic benefits justify this level of immigration.

To stop the population rising to 70 million, net immigration needs to be cut from around 250,000 per year to around 50,000.

In your opinion which of the following is the right level of NET immigration for Britain (i.e. the number of people who enter minus the number of people who leave)?
