David Cameron promised a referendum on the Lisbon Treaty if the Conservatives came to power before the treaty came into effect. A new situation would arise if the party came to power AFTER the treaty came into effect, for the Treaty could then be amended or abandoned only if all members of the EU agree.

Do you think that in this situation an incoming Conservative government should...

Still hold a referendum because Britain would need to reconsider its relationship with the European Union	51
Not hold a referendum because there is no point in having one, once the Lisbon Treaty comes into effect	30
Don't know	20

If Britain wanted to amend or repeal the Treaty, but could not persuade the rest of the EU to agree to this, Britain may be left with two choices. Firstly, to accept the Lisbon Treaty as it is, and secondly to leave the EU altogether. If this were the choice which of these should Britain do?

Accept the Lisbon Treaty and remain in the EU	36
Leave the EU altogether	42
