44. Cost of health care reform

Which comes closer to your opinion? (A) If policymakers made the right changes, they could reform the health care system without spending more money to do it.; (B) To make any real reforms to the health care system, policymakers will need to spend more money, either by raising some taxes, taking from other programs or increasing the deficit.

The Economist/YouGov Poll

July 3 - 4, 2017 - 1500 US Adults

66. Old to Young Ratio

Generally speaking older people are more expensive to insure than younger people, because older people tend to need more medical care than younger people. Under current law, health insurance companies are only permitted to charge older people three times as much as they charge younger people. Congress is considering health care reform proposals that would allow health insurance companies to charge older people up to five times as much as they charge younger people. Some people say the three to one limit causes higher insurance premiums for younger people, while other people say the five to one limit causes higher insurance premiums for older people. What do you think is the right policy? (A) Keep the three to one limit, even if that means more expensive insurance premiums for younger people; (B) Change to the five to one limit, even if that means more expensive insurance premiums for older people; (C) Not sure

67. Death Spiral

Health insurance works on the principle that healthy people who do not use a lot benefits pay premiums that cover the costs of caring for sicker people who do use a lot of benefits. If the costs of caring for sick people rises but the number of healthy people remains the same, then insurance providers can either try to cut the costs of caring for sick people or they can increase the premiums they charge for coverage. The health insurance death spiral is a condition in which healthy people decide to no longer buy insurance resulting in less money to cover the costs of caring for sicker people. This leads to either greater increases in premiums or greater cuts in benefits which then encourages even more healthy people to stop buying insurance. Eventually there may not be enough money to cover the costs of caring for sicker people. Before the Affordable Care Act, or "Obamacare", insurance companies would attempt to reduce the costs of caring for sick people by imposing lifetime and/or annual caps on benefits and sometimes refusing to offer coverage to people with pre-existing conditions. The Affordable Care Act prohibited insurance companies from imposing lifetime or annual caps on benefits or denying coverage based on a pre-existing condition, but it required everyone have health insurance as a way to force a large enough number of healthy people to remain in the health insurance pools. Republican health reform plans would remove the legal mandate requiring people have health insurance but would allow insurance companies to charge much higher rates to people who drop coverage as a way of discouraging people from dropping coverage. Republican reform plans would also ease prohibitions against lifetime or annual caps. What do you think is the best health care reform? (A) Require everyone to have health insurance or else pay a fine as a way of guaranteeing that a large number of healthy people are in insurance pools; (B) Permit insurance companies to charge much higher premiums for people who do not maintain constant coverage as a way to discourage healthy people from dropping coverage; (C) Permit insurance companies to impose lifetime or annual caps on coverage as a way to cut costs; (D) Permit insurance companies to deny coverage of or charge higher premiums to people with pre-existing conditions as a way to cut costs; (E) Not sure

92. Trump Tweets Appropriate – I heard poorly rated @Morning_Joe speaks badly of me (don't watch anymore). Then how come low I.Q. Crazy Mika, along with Psycho Joe, came.....to Mar-a-Lago 3 nights in a row around New Year's Eve, and insisted on joining me. She was bleeding badly from a face-lift. I said no!

Do you think it is appropriate or inappropriate that Donald Trump tweeted:
